

Are Donald Trump's Policies 'Made in Israel'?

We cannot refer readers to a more reliable or dedicated source than Allison Weir. This story puts the Trump plan in context of history and helps us understand the powerful, hidden influences that are steering Donald Trump. -Editor CEC

Essential context about Trump's refugee ban ? Made in Israel

By Allison Weir; February 4, 2017 contact@ifamericansknew.org

President Trump has issued an executive order suspending entry to the U.S for people from Iraq, Syria, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Iran, and Yemen (the order is called ?Protecting the Nation From Foreign Terrorist Entry Into the United States?). These same countries were the focus of the ?Visa Waiver Program Improvement and Terrorist Travel Prevention Act of 2015? under President Obama.

While reports on Trump's ban emphasize that these are Muslim majority countries, analysts seem to have ignored another significant characteristic that these countries share.

With just a single exception, all of these countries were targeted for attack by certain top U.S. officials in 2001. In fact, that policy had roots that went back to 1996, 1991, 1980, and even the 1950s. Below, we will trace this policy back in time and examine its goals and proponents.

2001 Policy Coup

Four-star general Wesley Clark, former Supreme Allied Commander, has described what he called a 2001 'policy coup' by a small group of people intent on destabilizing and taking over the Middle East, targeting six of the seven countries mentioned by Obama and Trump.

Clark gave the details in 2007 in an interview broadcast by Democracy Now and in a lecture at the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco.

Clark described a chance meeting in the Pentagon in 2001 ten days after 9/11 in which he learned about the plan to take down these countries.

After meeting with then-Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld and Deputy Secretary Paul Wolfowitz, Clark went downstairs to say hello to people on the Joint Staff who had worked for him in the past. One of the generals called him in.

'Sir, you've got to come in and talk to me a second.' He told Clark, 'We've made the decision we're going to war with Iraq.'

Clark was shocked. He said, 'We're going to war against Iraq? Why?' The officer said he didn't know. Clark asked if they had found information connecting Saddam to Al-Qaeda. The man said, 'No, no, there's nothing new that way. They just made the decision to go to war with Iraq.'

A few weeks later, Clark went back to the Pentagon and spoke to the general again. He asked whether the U.S. was still planning to go to war against Iraq.

The general replied: 'Oh, it's worse than that.' Clark says that the general picked up a piece of paper and said, 'I just got this down from upstairs today. This is a memo that describes how we're going to take out seven countries in five years, starting with Iraq, and then Syria, Lebanon, Libya, Somalia, Sudan and, finishing off, Iran.'

Clark asked, 'Is it classified?' He said, 'Yes, sir.'

Clark said he was stunned: 'I couldn't believe it would really be true. But that's actually what happened. These people took control of the policy of the United States.'

For the rest of the story visit Allison Weir's website

(<https://israelpalestineneews.org/essential-context-trumps-refugee-ban/>)