

Syrian army says Israel bombs air base near Damascus

Reuters News Service tells us that Israeli missiles (benignly called rockets) hit Syrian military installation near Damascus, far from Aleppo where the Russian supported war on ISIS finally seems to be winding down. As Russian and Syrian forces increase pressure on ISIS and other Western supported "rebels", Israel has become more violent in its support for ISIS, and its admitted wish to overthrow its neighboring Assad Government. Recall that Israel took the Golan Heights from Syria by force in 1967. When asked about each subsequent attack, Reuters reports that, Israel either refuses to explain, or claims it is attacking Hamas or Hezbollah activists in Syria.

We Hold These Truths wonders if President Elect Trump will demand that Israel's stop its aggression? Editor notes that Israel's hostile act is staged during the transition from Obama to Trump. WHTT's five minute audio, Why ISIS Never Attacks Israel. But All Around It, reveals the link between ISIS and ISRAEL.
